

If you could switch jobs with anyone in the company for a day, who would it be and why?

It would have to be our Founder and MD, Mr. Vineet Sukumar. Everyone wants to be entrepreneur and build something successful of their own. But what it takes to run that dream like a well-oiled machine and not a flash in the pan, is something I would want to learn being in Vineet's shoes. To be able to manage an organization like ours the way he does, would be a unique experience and a rare opportunity to come by.

If your job had a theme song, what would it be?

We Are the Champions by Queen.

At Vivriti, I have seen everyone go beyond their usual responsibilities and make efforts not just to better themselves but to work collectively as a team, so we grow together as individuals and as the entity known as Vivriti Capital. The song, much like my job here, is about overcoming hardships and getting a collective victory.

If you could have a superpower just for office hours, how would you use it?

That would be Super Speed. Considering my role in the company, time is a critical factor when it comes to client interactions. The traditional modes of transportation albeit present are constricted by the time factor. With super speed, I can be anywhere and everywhere I need to be at a whim. The ease of doing my job would be tremendous with this superpower.

Tell us about your "aha!" moment at Vivriti

For me "aha!" is not a moment that has happened only once but is something I am fortunate to experience every time I am able to discover a client with good potential for the company and welcome them into the Vivriti family.

If you were to describe your job in emojis, which ones would you pick and why?

 - My role in the company centers around building successful relationships with my clients and is also something that quite matches my personality. An opportunity to meet and interact with people across India is an interesting experience.

 - Vigilance is an important part of my job. As much as I love travelling and meeting people, I also enjoy analysing clients that I onboard and learning a lot about them.
